Celebrating its 8th year as a charity fundraiser, the Lindenhurst Souper Bowl of Caring – which precedes the Super Bowl – has become quite the neighborhood tradition. The cooking competition, which is the event's central component, provides an opportunity for budding culinary superstars to shine, as well as a chance for attendees to taste a wide variety of soups, chili, and baked goods.

In addition to the fine cuisine, those attending were treated to lively entertainment and music provided by DJ Mike. There was also a 50/50 raffle and a Chinese auction, which added yet another fun element to the afternoon. All of this and more benefited the Christina Renna Foundation and local families in need of assistance.

"Everyone participating here today had a lot of fun and some really good food," said McCaffrey. "It is so great seeing people from across the community coming together and having a ball, while simultaneously supporting charities in the process. I hope this tradition is here to stay and continues to grow."
